ZARTMAN CONSTRUCTION:

Over 45 years of doing it all

The Chamber View

Vincent J. Matteo, President/CEO

Well, in my last column I mentioned how I had not had to mow my lawn the entire month of April. Well, the month of May sure changed that. It seems every other day I was mowing either the front or the back. My wife told me if I did not mow the back soon, we might lose one of the grandchildren. Anyway, the weather has been warmer if not much drier. I also hope you had a great Memorial Day Weekend and took some time to remember those who paid the ultimate sacrifice for our freedoms.

Last month I wrote about the problem we are facing with rising taxes throughout Lycoming County and how it is impacting our municipal/ township taxes as well as our school and county taxes. The property taxes in many communities, but especially Williamsport, is becoming a major problem.

Since that column, the front page of the Sun-Gazette has had numerous articles about school districts throughout Lycoming County raising taxes and, in some cases, even after some tough decisions were made to cut teachers or funding for programs. My point is, it hasn't gotten any better and it will not unless even more tough decisions are made and good, solid planning takes place. But, let's look at the local government side of the equation with a particular emphasis on Williamsport since it is in Williamsport that voters will be faced with voting on whether or not they should change the form of government they live under in the upcoming November election.

Recently, the Sun-Gazette reported that the Williamsport Charter Commission had come to a consensus to recommend to voters that they change the form of government to Council-Manager from its current Strong Mayor – Council form. And, in an earlier paper, it was reported that the other group studying our form of government – the Williamsport Study Commission on Home Rule, will be making a recommendation that we change to a Home Rule form of government. First, having both these questions on the ballot at the same time is not in the best interests of the citizens of Williamsport. I am told it is probably not even legal. And, can anyone tell me what happens if they both pass? Talk about confusion and bad government. It seems obvious if that were to happen, we might see a drawn out fight in the courts. Something our community does not need.

Neither I, nor more importantly, the Chamber has a recommendation to the voters yet. I am still maintaining an open mind and will wait until the final reports are issued by both groups before I make a final recommendation to the Chamber Board of Directors – who will have the final say on whether or not the Chamber takes a position and, if they do, what that will be. My guess is they will play the role of “educator” and try to pass on the best information available to our members who live and/or work in the city. I will say, in both cases, in my opinion, they have a high hill to climb to prove we would be better served with changing our form of government. But, again, we should all wait until we hear the reports and see what they say and what logic their recommendation is based upon. Once that is done, the Chamber will either support one of them, oppose both of them, or simply work to educate the voters on both recommendations so they can make their decision based upon fact, not emotion. Changing the form of government should not be done because you do not like the current office holder or because you do not think you can elect people who think like you. It should be based upon fact and logic and what is truly in the best interests of the tax-paying citizens and businesses of Williamsport.

A related topic I want to discuss this week is the negative impact all the local news can potentially have on development activities. The push and pull of what form of government we should have is not the best thing to have in the forefront of the local news since it is based upon what some feel is the failure of our current form, but it is far from the worse. What is much worse is the fighting going on between the different factions on the Water and Sewer Authority and the fight to control it coupled with the Mayor's fight for the City to recoup some of its investment in infrastructure paid for by the City but used by the Authority. Both these issues are tied together – make no mistake about that. I don't know who is right or wrong in this battle, but I do know that regardless of how it comes out, it will cost the taxpayers more money. You can call it a tax or a fee, it can be charged directly by the Authority or indirectly by the City of Williamsport, but the fact remains it will be paid by you and me. And, the charges and countercharges going back and forth are bad for the community.

Perhaps even worse is the way City Council recently treated developers in our community. The recent debacle and what I see as mistreatment of two local developers by members of City Council is bad and, quite frankly, dangerous. I once sat in a meeting with a member of City Council who actually said “Williamsport doesn't trust developers” to a developer's face. While that Councilman has since lost his re-election bid, it is becoming more apparent that maybe he was not alone in his sentiments. And, we are not talking about “out of town” developers.

We are talking about developers who have done a great deal for this city and invested a tremendous amount of resources. I was not at the Council meeting, but if you read the reports in the Sun-Gazette and talk to people who were there, it was not a good day for the city. If you do not think this type of public display hurts the potential for more development in Williamsport, you are mistaken. Developers and companies looking to move here read the local papers and judge how welcomed they think they will be. There is no problem with asking tough questions and wanting good answers, but what apparently took place at City Council is a shame. All developers, especially local developers who have invested a good deal of money in this community already, deserve better. And that's the Chamber View.

Interior Design, a Companion to the Home

By CARA MORNINGSTAR
mor g ar ga/e e om

After serving the area for over 20 years in premium quality interior design, Timeless Furniture and Interiors will be relocating to open square, at the corner of Pine Street and Little League Boulevard in the city.

The company will be having a grand opening celebration during first Friday festivities from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. only.

"I like the location because we're easily accessible. People know where that is," said Michel Chiffer, co-owner. "It's more downtown, but it's not in the hard to find parking area. We'll have a whole parking lot."

He said it makes things easier for the deliveries and the drivers to bring in furniture.

"Both vendors and outgoing deliveries to homes will be better. We try to make the delivery experience amazing," he said. "You've got to get that wow experience, so deliveries are an important part of that."

Chiffer co-owns the company with Carol Lower.

"He handles the business and financial matters ... He is the backbone of Timeless. He is the rock," he said. "He keeps us all together."

Originally from the Leavertown area, he said Williamsport was the perfect place for him to start up a business.

"I've been in the interior design business for a long time ... I didn't want to move too far away from home," he said. "This town needs good furniture. It needs good design. It needs someone who can take your space and put it into a plan that makes sense."

He said it's important to keep an entire room in mind when designing instead of picking individual pieces.

"You don't build a house without a plan. You rarely get on a plane without thinking about where it's supposed to land. You know where you're going when you get on," he said. "When you start a room, you should know how it's going to look before you start buying pieces."

PHOTO PROVIDED

Timeless Furniture & Interiors is located at the corner of Pine Street and Little League Boulevard at open square.

Having a plan in mind is a breath of fresh air to so many people who buy an individual piece only to find it doesn't fit in the space they need.

"We put the whole room together in the plan, even if you just want a piece of furniture ... I still want to see where that chair is going to go," he said. "Then, I can measure space, find the right chair and find the right look."

They can put things together, keep them and wait until the time is right to move forward with each piece.

"We'll put it into the plan, and then whenever you're ready, we'll proceed," he said.

While the typical clientele for interior design may be considered more high end, they can meet needs for a budget, too.

"Our typical clients are anyone who needs help finding the right pieces for their house.

We can work within most any budget, and we've got financing," he said. "We've got options."

He said there are plenty of high quality, high end products, but there are many that are more affordable without sacrificing quality as well.

"I also felt it very important to bring in some middle of the road lines that are not an arm and a leg, not really expensive, but are still very good quality," he said. "You can get some furniture that's going to last but are still very, very reasonably priced."

Cartman Construction Persears Coin, It All

By M I I R I T I R
mre er ga)e e om

Cartman Construction Inc. has been a part of the central Pennsylvania business scene since 1999 when Gene Cartman launched the company.

Over 22 years, the business has grown from a home-based company to a thriving enterprise with Gene's son, David Hartman, serving as president.

David Hartman sums up the company as follows: "We do commercial, industrial and institutional construction,"

That means all sorts of construction, from building erections to concrete and carpentry work.

The company has a millright division performing industrial services.

In addition, Cartman Construction carries out machine moving, equipment set-up and dismantling activities.

"We do design build and construction management too," David Hartman said.

Zartman Construction Celebrates 18 Years in the Valley

rom age

The company, located on an 80-acre site at 1111 Point Township Dr., Northumberland, employs more than 100 people.

David Zartman and his son, Dan Zartman, who serves as project manager, noted that the company is busy these days.

With the the onset of summer, construction work can only be expected to pick up.

And that's good news, following the long winter and wet spring which somewhat slowed down business.

"We put on about 100 field guys in the spring," David Zartman said.

During any one week, the company may be digging into 100 jobs.

"I'd like to think of us as the clients' contractor, largely because of all the repeat business we have," Dan Zartman said.

One of Zartman's big jobs under way is the construction of a new academic building at Bucknell University.

And some of the company's biggest clients have been Bucknell as well as Weis Markets.

A recent project included construction of the Miller Center, a fitness facility in Lewisburg.

While most of Zartman's jobs are in the region, the company does step out of the area for work.

Recent construction work has included the building of marijuana dispensaries in Carlisle and Gettysburg.

"Most of our work is in a 100-mile circle," David Zartman said.

Over the years, the company has been involved in diverse construction work.

On a wall of a small conference room at Zartman headquarters, the father-son pair pointed out some of those projects.

They have included the erection of the roller coast-er at Snoe's Amusement Resort and an airport traffic control tower.

Zartman also did renovations for the Speedwall Bridge Dam in Titus.

"We did all the concrete work on that," David Zartman said.

He called buildings the company's specialty. "We are looking to do more metal fabrication," Dan Zartman said.

David Zartman said the construction industry poses its challenges.

"You never build the same thing twice," he said. "You have to adapt to conditions. You have to be nimble to what happens on the job site."

There's also the task of managing the jobs. Most recently, Zartman launched Clear Rental, the company's tool rental division.

Craters, ladders, loaders, saws, trailers, chippers, trimmers, and heaters are among the equipment available.

Zartman Construction is central Pennsylvania's full-service general contractor.

Whether you need a new building, a renovation or structural repairs, we will work with you to find a solution.

We don't consider any job too large or too small.

Sometimes outpromised.
Never outperformed.

We also have one of the largest fleets of rental construction equipment in the Valley.

18 YEARS – NOW THE VALLEY'S LEADING CREDIT CARD PROCESSOR

Leadership Lycoming, the Environment and Energy

The Leadership Lycoming trip to the landfill was definitely an eye-opener, as some put it. After a tour through the recycling center, the class was taken out in the midst of the landfill. Standing in the open while garbage trucks emptied their contents was definitely front row viewing. They learned so much about recycling and the landfill.

The class traveled to Panda Patriot where they were shown a powerpoint presentation on how the plant came to be. Joe Lloyd, Vice President of Operations, led the discussion on what Panda Patriot is and how it works. Really interesting! After a walk through to see just how everything works with minimal staff, the class was treated to a pork barbecue lunch. Very educational and interesting! Next, the class headed to Lycoming Engines for a tour, which was equally interesting. Thank you to the tour guides for taking time out of their day to show us around.

As part of the environment, the class met with Alice Trowbridge and Corey Ellison from Susquehanna Greenway Partnership for a presentation on what SGP is and does for our community. Then they headed to the River Walk for more information on the environment along the way. After a brief discussion from Alice and Corey, the walk ended just before the dam and the class continued on their way.

Thank you to our sponsors, LL Class of 2017, Chief Oil & Gas, IBG Business, and Range Resources.

Thank you Stephanie Steinbacher, UPMC Susquehanna and Chris Kenyon, McCormick Law Firm for being class reporters.

(l) The Class of 2018 learns more about the landfill and the co-gen plant.

The class started the day with a tour of the Lycoming County Landfill & Recycling facilities with Michael Hnatin, Lauren Strausser & Donny Hassenplug.

SMALL BUSINESS

Credit processing, it- a personalize you

() mor g ar ga)e e om

Merchants' Credit Processing Service of Central PA opened a new office in downtown Williamsport this year at 111 W. 4th St.

Their central office, located at 1111 1st St., Lewisburg, has been processing credit for the area since 1999.

Art Lieberman, owner, came to the area in 1999 from Brooklyn, New York, and thought it was a great place to establish a business.

His business style fits in with the local, hometown feel of the central Pennsylvania area.

"As far as our business, we have one goal - save them money. If we can't save them money, why would anybody make a switch in their credit card processing?" he said. "Yes, we provide wonderful service, but we will take a look. No matter what we have to do, we will save them money."

He said they make sure their clients get the best rates.

"Even to the point where we barely make any money," he said. "There's so much competition out there that we've got to supply rates that are credible."

He keeps the small town feeling in the central office, as the main office is 100 steps from his personal home.

Workers often eat homemade meals prepared by his wife for lunch.

The atmosphere in the establishment is friendly, even with a laid back "WiBard of OB" feeling as the path to the office, a green yurt building, is a yellow brick road.

"It's really, really comfortable," he said. "We love it ... It's really good. We try to even bring the customers into that family environment."

They offer Visa, Mastercard, Discover and American Express.

While they work for many local businesses, they also work with over 100 campgrounds with their credit processing.

He owes the amount of business the company does to their personal service.

"There are thousands and thousands that sell the exact same thing. It's not like having a product that may have a nuance to it ... Or something that is different that they can do," he said. "Mostly, it's the same thing. Oh, it's all about service."

He said more often than not, clients are given some 100 number to call where no one answers when there are problems.

"It's not them. It's a professional service. Most of the time, if they're busy enough ... You hear, 'I'm sorry, all operators are busy,'" he said.

Having a customer in person when a merchant is trying to sell an item but can't because there's some unknown problem with the credit card processing can lose business and create problems for those merchants. It's important to have someone available who can answer questions and troubleshoot problems.

"Sometimes we can solve the problem right away," he said.

The most common problem is having a storm that might mess up the machine and requires it to be unplugged and plugged back in.

"Just like a computer, something can go wrong, and you reboot it," he said. "That's an easy one."

Other problems can happen that they can troubleshoot and help people figure out so they can continue conducting their own businesses.

They are hopeful to continue expanding the business, particularly those who may be looking for a position in the Williamsport office.

Art Lieberman, owner, of Merchants' Credit Processing, Service of Central PA, 111 W. 4th St., Williamsport. He also has a home office location at 100 W. 10th St., Williamsport.

"We always are looking for talented people," he said.

The Williamsport/Lycoming Chamber of Commerce has gone live with ChamberMaster, our new Membership Database. Chamber members were originally emailed May 1st, inviting them to create their personal login and password for the Member Information Center.

All of our events, communication and information is being processed through this new database. Please check your inbox for a second email inviting you to create your login and password with the subject line: "Create Your Login for the Chamber of Commerce". Please click the link in the email and register! (If you have already done so, please disregard this flyer.)

The response from members about the new database has been overwhelmingly positive:

"ChamberMaster is awesome. Registered for an event.
Could add it right to my Outlook calendar. And registration was smooth. Very impressed."

Chiropractic Care by David G. Wascher, DC, PC Wascher's Chiropractic Center

Want To Understand CHIROPRACTIC?

There are many of these 7 simple principles:

- Your body is under the control of the brain and nervous system as long as you are alive.
- Your brain is protected by the skull, and your spinal cord is protected by the spinal column.
- Spinal bones move out of normal alignment and interrupt your normal nerve flow.
- This disruption of normal nerve flow is referred to as a vertebral subluxation.
- It is vital to know that subluxations can be silent, causing problems long before symptoms occur.
- Chiropractors find subluxations, and by performing a spinal adjustment, facilitate a return of normal nerve supply.
- Normal nerve supply results in a greater expression of LIFE for you!
