The Chamber View

Jason Fink, President/CEO

The elections are over and we are moving into the heart of the holiday season with Thanksgiving just past and Hanukkah and Christmas coming later this month. Before moving past the elections, it should be noted that we are going to see some change at the County and local level. Joining incumbent county commissioners Tony Muscare and Rick Mirabito is Scott Metzger. Numerous local races were settled as well with the most notable being the race for mayor in the City of Williamsport. Derek Slaughter will be the new mayor of the City come January.

It'll be good to have this change at these various positions as they will bring new thoughts and ideas as to how local government should function in serving their constituents. The Chamber looks forward to working with all those elected this past November in helping to grow and enrich Lycoming County.

Speaking of change, there's a few things that are occurring in the retail world that should be concerning to us. I got a call earlier this week from someone asking about what's going on with all of the retail closings here in the market. This individual was disappointed to see all that we've lost so far and I too, and know others as well, share this feeling. The challenge is that a fair amount of the blame lies with us the consumer. The retailers are following our buying patterns. It's something they've been doing for decades (and most likely centuries). Back in the 1970s and 1980s, we started shopping at the malls so downtown stores were vacated. Today, it's happening once again with shoppers spending more online than at the malls and other retail outlets. If consumers quit shopping online, retailers will notice and adapt accordingly by opening up brick and mortar stores.

While it might be convenient to sit inside your home and buy from your computer or cell phone, it does nothing to help out your local economy. Both large and small businesses that operate from bricks and mortar stores here pay local property taxes. They employ local people who also pay local taxes and spend their money on other goods and services here in the community. Granted, there are times that you can't find that item here and it does make sense to order it online. However, if it's something that you can find here then please shop here and support our economy. Amazon and all of the other .coms won't be paying local property taxes this spring like we will so let's do what we can to support who's in our community.

One other request that I have is from helping out a small business that had an issue associated with a customer complaint that went public. I won't rehash the details only to say that it was for something that is a common business practice in having someone pay you for providing them with a product. The customer didn't feel they should have been charged for it and was upset about it along with the fact that they were charged more for using a credit card. Customers need to educate themselves on things such as merchant service fees as those credit card rewards programs aren't paid for by you or the credit card companies. They're paid for through fees assessed on merchants accepting your cards. You may have noticed a number of businesses in the area have a cash fee and a credit card fee for products and services rendered.

Before going too much further down the path, the point of bringing this up is if you have an issue with a company, speak to them first before going online or writing that letter to the editor to complain. The vast majority of business owners and their employees want to do right by their customers. From time to time, I've had to speak to a business about an issue someone's brought to my attention involving them. There's not one time that I can think of where the company didn't take serious this issue and want to address it for their customer or change the manner in which they were handling a business situation.

As I get to the end of my column, I want to wish you from the Chamber team here a wonderful Christmas and Hanukkah and prosperous start to your new year. Lycoming County is a great place to live and we are fortunate to have the quality of life found in our community. Thanks to everyone for their efforts to help grow what we enjoy here.

The Williamsport/Lycoming Chamber of Commerce, Department of Community and Economic Development, Office of International Business Development and Governor's Action Team hosted their 3rd site consultant FAM (familiarization) tour during the Championship Weekend of the Little League World Series. Funding for the program was from the Lycoming Economic Development Foundation Fund through the First Community Foundation Partnership of Pennsylvania, Liberty Group, Penn College, Lycoming College and UPMC Susquehanna.

Consultants had the opportunity to meet and hear from officials with the Lycoming Economic Development Foundation, SEDA-COG Joint Rail Authority, Lycoming Valley Railroad, UPMC Susquehanna, Lycoming College, Penn College, and RETTEW Associates. In addition, they had the opportunity to see and learn about industry and the local community with tours of LeClerc Foods USA, Panda Patriot, Penn College, UPMC Susquehanna and Lycoming College/East End Corridor Development. In addition, they had an opportunity to catch a couple of games over at Little League.

There were 9 participants this year. We had 2 representatives from the international community participating representing a Taiwanese medical device manufacturer and a Japanese health care provider. The remaining were site consultants from New York, New Jersey, Ohio and Texas.

In November, we were able to host a return visit by the Taiwanese firm that brought with them a senior official from Taiwan. The Chamber is actively working with the others that participated in this year's tour while also keeping in touch with those who have participated in previous ones.

Local bank focuses on community engagement

By MALLORIE McILWAIN
mmcilwain@sungazette.com

Woodlands Bank, located on East Third Street, has been working for nearly 30 years to bring a community aspect to banking in the Williamsport and surrounding areas according to Jon Conklin, president and CEO.

The bank's doors opened on Oct. 10 of 1990 after a group of locals got together to discuss the banking industry at the time and how they wanted to get back to "community banking."

At the time, there were local financial institutions in every community, but now that is hard to come by.

Today, the bank is successful and growing in the industry as smaller community banks are merging to meet the demands of commercialization.

"It was just a small building here with only nine or ten employees," Conklin said. "The building has been added onto and we have seven branch locations from Lock Haven to Hughesville."

Conklin had a background with public accounting and got to know Woodlands and other local banks through his history before starting at Woodlands in 2010 as the Chief Financial Officer.

He stated that he found what he really enjoyed about banking within Woodlands and soon became the CEO and President in 2013.

"This is where I wanted to be," he said.

No matter the growth, Woodlands' goal has always been to remain an independent, "community focused financial institution" according to Conklin.

Below, this year, employees volunteered at the Central PA Food Bank and Greater Lycoming Habitat for Humanity. Below, Woodlands Bank donates $13,000 to the Montoursville Area School District.

"We continue to do what we do, which is a true community bank business model," he said. "Woodlands still exists because the goal that still remains today is to do what we can to remain independent in the community. That desire still exists."

The bank does traditional banking with small business lending as well as commercial lending, home equity loans, mortgage loans and regular accounts for deposits, saving and checking.

Though using traditional methods of banking and lending, Woodlands also works to remain relevant with Apple and Samsung pay, person to person payments and other means of mobile banking options.

Conklin believes that Woodlands sets itself apart from other banks in the local area due to its "proximity to its customers and communities".

"The folks that make those (financial) decisions are here, you see us at the grocery store, you see us out at community events and organizations," he said. "It's our ability to take some more risk with customers that might not look stellar on paper, but we know pieces of them and we know their character because we know them personally. It allows us to provide that financing for businesses and residences. We know our customers, their businesses and we know how they fit in the community and the prospects for success."

He added that the bank contributes to a lot of local schools with donations, helping with stockmarket games and even financial literacy curriculum. The bank also sponsors Little League teams, Uptown Music Collective and local universities with labs and programs.

"It's part of our main focus," he said. To be intertwined with our communities. We encourage our employees to get involved in their communities on a personal basis"

What's Going on in Lycoming County?

Celebrate the Holidays at the World of Little League® Museum and Official Store

PRESS RELEASE: SOUTH WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. - This holiday season, visitors across Central Pennsylvania are encouraged to stop at the World of Little League® Museum and Official Store for a variety of exciting events and opportunities to experience with their families.

"The holiday season is always an important time for families to spend together and we wanted to find a way to provide our visitors with a great way to not only learn about the history of the Little League program, but also have the chance to spend time together and help those in need," said Lance Van Auken, Little League Vice President and Executive Director of the World of Little League Museum. "From a chance to meet Santa to our annual Toys for Tots donation drive, our visitors will be able to join in on the holiday festivities and create a season to remember at our Museum."

Below are some of the upcoming events this holiday season at the World of Little League Museum:

Toys for Tots Donations (November 1 to December 13)

For the 14th straight year, the World of Little League Museum also will be participating in the Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Program this holiday season. Each visitor who brings a new, unwrapped toy with a value of at least $10 to the Museum between now and December 13, will receive one free Museum admission for later use as a thank you for supporting the local Toys for Tots program.

Toys collected at the Museum will be given to the American Rescue Workers and the Salvation Army for local distribution in Williamsport, South Williamsport, Loyalsock Township, Cogan Station, Trout Run, and Linden.

In addition to the toys donated at the World of Little League, children in Greater Lycoming County benefit from Toys for Tots donations at area collection centers. Last year, more than 18,000 toys were distributed throughout the local Williamsport community with more than 2,000 children being supported in those efforts.

Checks and money orders made payable to Toys for Tots should be sent to Bill Dougherty, 500 Quail Lane Cogan Station, Pa., 17728. Those will then be sent to the headquarters of Toys for Tots in Quantico, Va. The funds will then be placed into Mr. Dougherty's account so he can buy toys for age groups that the five distribution sites are short of for the holidays. Local Toys for Tots campaigns are conducted in more than 800 Communities.

Santa Visit (December 8 from 12-3 p.m.)

On Sunday, December 8, visitors to the museum will have the opportunity to take their picture with Santa from Noon until 3 p.m. All visitors will receive free admission to the Museum during Santa's visit and can earn a free pin with any Museum Gift Shop purchase that day.

In addition to Santa visiting, a holiday train display featuring a model version of the Union Pacific Big Boy Locomotive will be at the Museum on December 8. A Union Pacific Big Boy engine will be touring the United States this year to commemorate the 150th year of the completion of the transcontinental railroad and a model train will be making a stop in Williamsport to celebrate Santa's visit.

Throughout the upcoming holiday season, the museum will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, except for Thanksgiving Day (November 28), December 24, 25, 31, and January 1, when it will be closed. Please contact the museum (570-326-3607) or check its digital sign or Facebook page at Facebook.com/LittleLeagueMuseum for updates on store specials, weather alerts, and more.

Plankenhorn Stationery celebrates 120th anniversary

By MALLORIE McILWAIN
mmcilwain@sungazette.com

Plankenhorn Stationery is celebrating its 120th anniversary on Dec. 10 after starting the business in 1899 and being the first chamber member of the Board of Trade in 1900.

Locals can celebrate with Christopher M. "Chris" Plankenhorn, president, Charles C. "Chip" Plankenhorn, secretary/treasurer and Charles M. "Charlie" Plankenhorn at the business on West Fourth Street during the day. The business will have different raffles including giving away a new office chair, sales including 120 reams of paper at $1.20 a piece and an art demonstration from the art supplier.

Gary Chrisman from KISS 102-7 will also be doing a live remote from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Together, the five staff members from the store have 182 years of office supplies experience and counting. With that experience and quality customer service, the Plankenhorns work to maintain customer satisfaction throughout the years.

"Not only have the neighbors come and gone, but so have the customers," Chip Plankenhorn said. "At 120 years you don't keep the same clients. You deal with that every day but you try to keep the customers you have happy and satisfied and then they tell people and hopefully you grow that way."

"The retention of customers is probably due to good customer service," Chris Plankenhorn said. "They spread the word for us as opposed to us hammering our name all the time."

Plankenhorn also works to create a space of familiarity and efficiency with printing, office supplies, art supplies and furniture in one place.

"People know when they call here that they are talking to the same people."

There's a Plankenhorn in the building as long as the store is open," Chip Plankenhorn said. "If they need printing and office supplies, it's a one-stop shop."

"It streamlines their ordering process," Chris

Plankenhorn said. "They can get printing, office supplies and furniture."

The two also added that the delivery is free and is usually within the next day or up to a week for printing and furniture. Plankenhorn also puts the furniture together for those who order it.

"We don't just deliver a box," Charlie Plankenhorn said.

"We try to help to the best of our ability," Chip Plankenhorn said.

Together the Plankenhorns have served as board members of the Chamber, are active in their churches, have sponsored Little League teams, worked with the United Way and work to keep a connection to the Williamsport community.

"We have always been connected to the community," Chris Plankenhorn added. "We never served together but we have served separately to hopefully positively impact the community."

Leadership Lycoming Program Day

Law Enforcement and the Judiciary

The Leadership Lycoming Class of 2020 had the opportunity to ride along with the Williamsport Police Department in preparation for their Law Enforcement & the Judiciary program day. The class visited the Lycoming County Courthouse and met with Lycoming County Court of Common Pleas Judges including President Judge Butts, Judge Reynolds and Judge Linhardt. The class also heard from Court Administrator, Adrienne Stahl and Facility Canine Handler and the Executive Secretary to Judge McCoy, Jerri Rook. The class learned the responsibilities each speaker has in their role and the operations of the courthouse. They also learned about Lycoming County's Adult and Juvenile Probation offices from Ed McCoy, John Stahl and Matt Stanzione. The class then walked to the Michael Ross Room at the Trade & Transit Centre II for a session on transition and re-entry back into the community with Ian Nutt and Deenie Keeler, JusticeWorks Youth Care; Nicole Miller and Molly Kirby, Transitional Living Centers; Michael Boughton, GEO Group; along with a guest who has completed Transitional Living Centers' program and is now successfully engaged in the community.

After a session of speaking with Chief Damon Hagan about their police ride-along experiences and lunch with the Magisterial District Judges, the class had the opportunity to tour the Lycoming County Prison. To end the day, the class learned more about the different roles in the criminal justice system with a panel discussion including Detective Willy Weber, Bail/Release Program Manager Harry Rogers, Sherriff Mark Lusk, Chief Public Defender Nicole Spring and District Attorney Elect Ryan Gardner.

Thank you to the Lycoming County Courthouse, Lycoming County Court of Common Pleas Judges, Trade & Transit Centre II and the Lycoming County Prison for allowing the class to spend valuable time learning about law enforcement and the judiciary system during their class day.

Thank you to Jessica Probst, River Valley Regional YMCA; Toby Schwartzman, James V. Brown Library and Mallory Weymer, Lycoming College for being class reporters.

Special thank you to our program day sponsor, Ralph S. Alberts Co., Inc.

Leadership Lycoming Projects Local Volunteer Opportunities

The Leadership Lycoming Class of 2020 kicked off its class project with multiple volunteer opportunities in October and November. The first project the class participated in was Family Promise of Lycoming County's Annual Coat and Blanket Giveaway on October 5. Volunteers helped set up for the event, assisted with giving out coats and blankets, grilled food to give away and tore down after the event. The second project was with the Lycoming County Master Gardeners. One class member volunteered and assisted the gardeners with preparing their gardens at the Lysock View Complex for winter. In November, class members volunteered at Sojourner Truth Ministries, where they prepared and served meals and had the opportunity to connect with the Sojourners. Class members also assisted the James V. Brown Library in decorating for Victorian Christmas. The class will participate in three upcoming December projects. The first project is in conjunction with the Lycoming County United Way's Giving Tuesday campaign. Class members will help brainstorm creative and innovative ideas, provide social media and marketing support and participate in fundraising efforts with community connections. For the second project, class members will work with The New Love Center Food Pantry to load pre-packaged boxes of food and distribute the boxes to those in need. The last project will be with the Office of Aging's Santa's Seniors Program. During this project, the class will sort and pack items for distribution to seniors in need as well as clean up and load boxes for delivery.

South Side restaurant expands clientele

By DEREK DANNEKER
ddanneker@sungazette.com

Aiming to keep a family-friendly atmosphere while attracting area professionals looking for an adult beverage, the owner of South Side Restaurant & Pizzeria, at 324 W Southern Ave., opened a tavern adjacent to the current location.

Brian Haller, owner, said since opening the South Side Tavern the community response has been overwhelmingly positive.

"We wanted to better compliment our food menu with a better selection of adult beverages," he said.

The tavern offers a notably different vibe from the Italian restaurant just a few steps away.

"Once people come in, try it and see it, because it's got such a cool vibe they are sold right away and they become regulars," said Haller.

For almost nine months Haller dedicated nearly every extra hour he had to renovate the space and hone its rustic, but modern aesthetic.

"It's brand new and sparkling clean... It's a place where professionals seem to gravitate toward," he said. "I have a lot of business people, lawyers and doctors, that's kind of like our clientele over there."

Far from a place which invites the boisterous and irascible, the South Side Tavern is a relaxed setting with Four Ultra High-Definition televisions which often play host to the "blue and white" — either Penn State or South Williamsport High School sports.

"It's kind of like a really cool place for people who are looking for an alternative to crowded, younger bars," said Haller.

The separation between the two, however, means that those who are normally averse to taverns needn't be alarmed by the addition.

"If people are kind of opposed to bars, but they want to go out to eat, they can still go in the restaurant, and they don't even know we have a tavern," said Haller. "But if somebody wants the tavern environment, great TVs in a cool vibe, then they can go to the other side."

The South Side Restaurant & Pizzeria still features their homemade menu featuring their popular lasagna, chicken parmesan, pizza, cheesesteaks, subs, and salads, he said.

The bread is also homemade and always fresh, said Haller.

"We bake small batches of bread all day long so the sandwich rolls and bread that we serve are right out of the oven," he said. "All of our dough, sauces, and entrees are made in house along with some signature appetizers, dressings, and desserts."

The twin operations are also used to support the local community in business sponsorships such as: The South Williamsport Mummies'

Parade, The South Williamsport Marching Band Trailer, the Mounties Gridiron Club, and Little Mountaineer Little League, among many others.

Operating hours for the restaurant are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. While adult beverages are available all day, The tavern is open noon on Saturdays and Sundays and at 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The Tavern is open late night Wednesday through Saturday.

Carry-out and delivery orders are also available.

The Tavern is open for party reservations in the off hours for parties or special occasions.

Those interested in more information or ordering may call 570-323-4045.

Street sweeping helps businesses go green

By DEREK DANNEKER
ddanneker@sungazette.com

Going green is on the mind of Sweep a Lot LLC, a local professional street sweeping service and maintenance company.

"There's a lot of good locations out there, not just for aesthetics but also the environmental impact," said owner Robert K. Vlacich, of Montoursville. "We're so close to the Susquehanna, which of course connects the Chesapeake. All that snow water runoff that we see goes right in."

The business idea harkens back to when his son was in elementary school and started cleaning parking lots for Earth Day, he said.

"That was an eye-opening experience," said Vlacich. "I get it, it's good for the kids to learn to clean up but a parking lot shouldn't look like that. It just kind of always stuck in my head."

With recent stormwater mandates, many businesses are looking to limit their impact on the environment by utilizing a sweeper, undoubtedly they come to Vlacich who operates the region's first private sweeping service.

"I got sick and tired of seeing trash everywhere," said Vlacich, who's done work from large industrial or commercial parking lots to lots for small businesses. "I think a lot of people don't realize where those stormwater drains go — right to the river."

Businesses can not only utilize a sweeper for environmental reasons, but also for their own lot's benefit.

"Whenever you have debris built up on the pavement, every time you drive over cinders or stones, it grinds into the pavement and tears it apart," he said. "By keeping it cleaner, the parking lot lasts longer."

Unlike most street sweepers, which brush debris towards the center and move it into a hopper, Vlacich's regenerative sweeper effectively acts as a vacuum to remove the fine sediment that would normally be swept away in heavy rainfall events.

A clean lot also helps businesses make a good first impression, he said.

"That's the big thing I stress. You walk up to a restaurant and the parking lot is a mess, it just kind of sets the tone," said Vlacich. "If a business doesn't take enough pride in their external appearance as you're walking in, do they really care about their customers?"

Sweep a Lot does everything from a one-time clean up to keeping a routine cleaning schedule.

"We try to keep it flexible and give a good quality of service and keep it at a competitive price," he said. "If the parking lot is empty at night, we do it at night. If it's on a Sunday, we do it on a Sunday."

In the future, Vlacich said he hopes to expand his business, in part with municipal contracts as boroughs and townships move away from buying their own street sweeper.

Vlacich, owner of Sweep A Lot, said his want to clean up the parking lot trash and thereby the river, led him to start his business.

"I'm curious to see where it goes," he said. "As demand increases, I'll be here for it."

Sweeps a lot currently operates in an hours drive radius of the city.
